

SOCIAL, EMOTIONAL,
& BEHAVIOR ACADEMY

Empathic Listening for Relationship-Building

Spring Convening
March 26, 2025

MayInstitute
Shaping Futures. Changing Lives.

Breakout Session Overview

- 01 Welcome & Introductions
- 02 What is Empathic Listening?
- 03 Challenges in Communication
- 04 Supported Practice
- 05 Wrap-Up

What is Empathic Listening?

Through empathetic listening, you can create a space in which others feel safe being themselves, laying the foundation for open and honest communication between both the speaker and the listener.”

Empathic listening involves...

Slowing down and seeking to understand others' inner worlds

Taking in what another person is saying (or not saying) with the intent to understand and relate to them

Emphasizes the need to understand another's emotional experience, needs, motivations, and perceptions

Benefits of empathic listening in the workplace...

- + Builds emotional intelligence
- + Improves collaboration
- + Strengthens relationships
- + Creates a safe & inclusive environment

Engaging Your Empathic Imagination

Break down another's perspectives by asking yourself about the following factors:

Challenges	What challenges or difficulties are they currently facing?
Needs	What underlying need is beneath their behaviors, words or actions?
Feelings	What underlying emotion is beneath their behaviors, words or actions?
Thoughts	What thoughts might be running through their mind right now?
Values	What might be some things they value?

The Brain science of Empathic Listening

The neurobiology of empathic listening involves a network of interconnected brain regions and chemicals that allow us to understand and respond to the emotions of others:

- Prefrontal Cortex: Facilitates perspective-taking and understanding others' emotions.
- Amygdala: Guides appropriate emotional responses.
- Oxytocin: Enhances social bonding, trust, and compassionate responses.

This ability is crucial for building strong, compassionate relationships.

Image: Unsplash (Hal Gatewood)

Brain Health & Empathic Listening

- Physical exercise
- Mindfulness
- Sleep
- Nutrition
- Social engagement
- Cognitive challenges
- Emotional intelligence
- Stress reduction

Image: Unsplash (Fitsum Admasu)

Challenges in Communication

Group Reflection

- What are some challenges that come up for you during hard or more sensitive conversations?
- How can empathic listening help you overcome these challenges?

Strategies for managing hard conversations

As the 'Talker'

- Body scan
- Tend & Befriend

As the 'Listener'

- Sit with the discomfort
- Tend & Befriend

Supported Practice

Practice Protocols: 5-Minute Chats

- with Principal
- with Staff
- with Students
- with Parents

Link to Protocols Folder

CASEL Guide to Schoolwide SEL

5-Minute Chats with Students

This tool is adapted from a similar resource created by the Anchorage District SEL Team, and revised with input from students in the Civics 2.0 afterschool program in Cleveland Metropolitan School District.

Personal connection and relationships are critical in being a culturally responsive educator and as a gateway to engagement in learning. This template includes a structure and sample questions for one-on-one chats to open dialogue with students and learn more about how they are experiencing school.

How to use this template: Those who lead a single class should plan to connect with each student individually during the first weeks of school and periodically throughout the year. Those who lead multiple classes can work with a team of teachers who share students to divide responsibility and make sure each student is contacted.

If possible, call upon other staff in the building to assign each person a smaller "advisory group" of students to contact. Other staff may include administrators, deans, counselors, specialist teachers, office staff, paraprofessionals, security staff, or out-of-school time leaders. Consider allowing students to indicate which staff members they prefer to have as an advisor. Be sure to notify families that their student has been assigned to an advisor and this is an organized, school-wide effort.

Preparing to chat: The primary purpose of the chat is to hear about your student's experience and perspective so that you can know them as an individual, be responsive to their needs, learn from them for the benefit of the class and school, and build relational trust. Students shared that they feel more comfortable having discussions with staff who know them and have shared a little about their own lives, so be aware that trust is built over time and should not be assumed.

Initiate – In a group setting, let all students know you'll be reaching out to them individually to connect and hear more about how things are going. Have students sign up for a time for a call or in-person chat or reach out to them with a school and parent-approved messaging app that allows for easy back and forth exchange. If possible, let them choose! Say something like:

"I'm working on connecting with everyone in this group to get a better sense of how everyone is feeling about school, how they're doing in class, what they're interested in, and how I can be supportive."

Open – Show that they are significant to you and you care about them.

- "I'm glad to have the chance to chat 1 on 1 with you."
- "I'm excited to have you in my class/group this year – I can tell you're going to add a lot to the group."
- If you already know something about their lives, bring it up as appropriate. For example, "Your sister is in college now, right? How have you been adjusting?" or "Isn't it baseball season already? How has it been for you balancing practice with everything else you have going on?"

Personalize – Ask a question that invites the student to tell you about how they are experiencing school. Be more specific than "how's it going?" – often we are socialized to answer that question with little thought or detail. Be attentive to body language that may indicate the student wants to keep talking or move on.

- "How have you been doing in your classes lately?"
- "What is new for you since last school year?"
- "What are you learning that's most interesting to you?"
- "What would you say is your biggest source of joy at school right now? What about a source of stress?"

Invite Feedback – Show your student that you value their perspective and are open to making changes based on their input.

- "What would you like to see happen this school year?"
- "What's something that you and your classmates are interested in, that we could explore more in class?"
- "What do you need most right now from me and your other teachers to do well in your classes?"
- "What do you think our school/class is getting right so far this year?"
- "What do you think our school/class should be doing differently?"

Close – End on an optimistic, forward-thinking note.

- "Next week we're going to learn about _____. I'll think about how to use some of the ideas you shared."
- "Thanks for talking. Let's check in again in a week or two to follow up about _____."

For more information, tools, and resources, visit schoolguide.casel.org.
Copyright © 2022 CASEL | All rights reserved.

Practice Protocols: 5-Minute Chats

Instructions:

1. Pair up with a practice partner.
2. Role Play:
 - a. Take turns using one of the “5-minute Chat” protocols.
 - b. After Partner A is finished, Partner B offers feedback: A Glow & A Grow.
 - c. Switch roles & repeat

Group Reflection

What challenges did you experience during this practice?

What helped you overcome those challenges?

Closing: Setting an Action Step

What is one way you can commit to engaging empathic listening upon your return to school?

Wrap-Up

SOCIAL, EMOTIONAL,
& BEHAVIOR ACADEMY

Akira Gutierrez-Renzulli

agrenzulli@edc.org

Lilita Mattison

lmattison@edc.org

Kamilah Drummond-Forrester

kdrummond-forrester@edc.org

> Thank You

